II. Basic terms and conditions for using the platform and services

1. Access to the website and usage of part of services (e.g. searching for leaflets and downloading them) is not subject to the registration of the user. However, the registered user can use also other services available only for registered users.
2. Usage of services on the platform is free of charge.
3. The user agrees that the controller can start to provide service immediately upon the conclusion of the service agreement, i.e. also prior to the end of statutory period for withdrawal from contract. By expressing consent with the start of service provision prior to the end of the statutory period for withdrawal, the user loses the right to withdraw from the agreement pursuant to the law. This shall be without prejudice to the option to terminate the service agreement by the user in compliance with Article IV. (3) of these terms and conditions.
4. The user agrees with the usage of means of distance communication when concluding the service agreement. Costs incurred by the user from using means of distance communication in relation to the conclusion of the service agreement (e.g. costs of internet connection) shall be borne by the user, whereas they do not differ from standard rates.
5. The service agreement is concluded for an indefinite period of time. The user shall be entitled to terminate the service agreement at any time by cancelling the user account pursuant to Article III. (3) of these terms and conditions.
6. The controller shall not be liable for a constant availability/accessibility of the platform.
7. The controller shall not be liable for correctness, up-to-datedness or completeness of leaflets of third parties. In case of direct or indirect links referring to websites of third parties, the controller shall not be liable for contents of such websites.
8. The user acknowledges that texts, photographs, graphic works and other elements contained on the platform or available as part of the service can be individually or as a whole subject to copyright. Databases found on the platform or available as part of the service are protected by a special right of the database procurer. The user is authorised to browse the platform and use services in compliance with their purpose. The user is not authorised to modify the platform and its contents in any way or to interfere with it in any way.

III. User registration and cancellation of the user account

1. In the user registration process, the user is asked to enter an email address and to agree to these terms. In the registration process, the controller confirms the email the user entered upon registration by sending a verification email. The controller is entitled to request the user to confirm the email. Once the user has confirmed the verification email, a password to his user account is generated or the user can enter the password himself. In case the controller does not require the confirmation of the verification e-mail by the user, the password is automatically sent to the user in the verification e-mail. The user can change the password to his user account at any time. To provide his services, the controller reserves the right to modify the registration process according to the latest technical and safety requirements.
2. The user can register also by means of his or her Facebook or Google account, if such method of registration is at the time available on the platform of the controller. If the user decides to use this method of registration, s/he hereby grants consent to the controller to use his or her basic information contained in his or her Facebook or Google profile such as the name, email address and photograph. This information is processed by the company Facebook, Inc./ Google LLC and is provided to the controller in compliance with terms and conditions of personal data protection of the respective company. Usage of the Facebook account for signing in to controller's services is subject to rules of personal data protection of the company Facebook, Inc. available here: https://www.facebook.com/legal/FB_Work_Privacy. Usage of the Google account for signing in to controller's services is subject to rules of personal data protection of the company Google LLC available here: <https://policies.google.com/privacy?hl=en>.

3. The user shall keep his or her access data for his or her user account safe.
4. The user shall be entitled to cancel his or her user account created on the platform of the controller at any time by unsubscribing from receiving commercial newsletters sent by the controller to the email address of the user entered during the registration. Unsubscribing from receiving commercial newsletters sent by the controller can be made in any commercial newsletter from the controller. Unsubscribing from receiving commercial newsletters automatically results also in the cancellation of the user account of the user and termination of the service agreement.
5. The controller reserves the right to cancel the user account without cause for its convenience.
6. The controller reserves the right to change registration methods and methods for signing in to services, or also to exclude some methods for registration or signing in to services.

IV. Special provisions

1. If the user believes that the controller violated his or her rights, the user can address the controller with claim for remedy by email at info@hyperia.sk. If the controller refuses the claim for remedy or fails to reply to the claim for remedy within 30 days from the date of sending the claim, the user shall have the right to turn with the aim to protect his or her consumer rights to the alternative dispute resolution entity in compliance with the Act No. 391/2015 Coll. on alternative dispute resolution, amending and supplementing certain rights as amended. The user shall cooperate during the alternative dispute resolution with the alternative dispute resolution entity in the interest of expedient dispute resolution. The motion to start alternative dispute resolution can be filed as described under Section 12 of the above Act. The alternative dispute resolution entity is "Slovak Trade Inspection, Prievozská 32, P.O. Box 5, 820 07 Bratislava 27", or another relevant authorized legal entity listed in the list of alternative dispute resolution entities maintained by the Ministry of Economy of Slovak Republic (the list is available at the website <http://www.mhsr.sk>). The user is entitled to choose the alternative dispute resolution entity for consumer disputes to which the user will turn. The user shall in case of cross-border dispute turn to the European Consumer Centre, which will provide the user with service address, electronic address or telephone number of the alternative dispute resolution entity competent for the resolution of user's dispute.
2. In compliance with the Article 14 of the Regulation (EU) No. 524/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 May 2013 on online dispute resolution for consumer disputes and amending Regulation (EC) No. 2006/2004 and Directive 2009/22/EC, the consumer has the right to apply his or her rights and claims arising from the contractual relationship with the controller within the online alternative dispute resolution. Online dispute resolution is provided by the platform operated by the European Commission. The user who is consumer is entitled to use the RSO platform for dispute resolution in language s/he chooses. The RSO platform is available online at:

<https://webgate.ec.europa.eu/odr/main/index.cfm?event=main.home.chooseLanguage>.

3. By acceding to these terms and conditions the user agrees that the controller can use his or her email address or telephone number for marketing addressing and send advertisement information to this email address or telephone number.

V. Protection of personal data and privacy of users

1. The controller took adequate measures with the aim to provide to the user all information related to the processing and safety of personal data by the provider, as well as to exercising the rights of the data subject in brief, transparent, comprehensible and easily accessible form, clearly and simply formulated in Information about personal data processing. The controller provides this information electronically.
2. Information about personal data processing is available here.

VI. Final provisions

1. Legal relationship between the controller and the user is governed by the law of the Slovak Republic with the exclusion of conflict of laws rules.
2. The controller shall have the right to change or modernize services without any prior notification to the user as well as without the user's consent. However, such change shall not constitute the breach of user's rights.
3. The controller shall be entitled on the grounds of changes of relevant legal regulations or its own business policy or based on its own decision to change or completely substitute these terms and conditions. The controller shall ensure that new terms and conditions are published on the date changes come into effect at the latest.
4. The user agrees that the controller can assign its rights and obligations arising from the service agreement concluded under these terms and conditions to a third party.
5. Should any provision of these terms and conditions prove to be fully or partially invalid or ineffective, it shall be without prejudice to the validity or effect of the remaining provisions of these terms and conditions. A legal provision, which, insofar as possible, is as close as possible to the meaning and purposes of such invalid provision of these terms and conditions, shall be used instead of the invalid or ineffective one. The same shall be applied in case any of the provisions of these terms and conditions is found unenforceable.
